COMMENT OF THE DAY

The Kowloon Riots

NOTHING can justify or excuse the disgraceful behaviour in Kowloon during the last two days of ruffians and hooligans bent solely on the mission of intimidation, arson and looting.

There was never a genuine reason for the demonstrations which sparked off the subsequent rioting, and it is obvious that the grievance, to what it amounted, was deliberately utilised by agents provocateurs to incite unruly elements into most despicable actions.

The blame rests squarely on political extremists determined to turn an anniversary into an orgy of mob violence. Moreover the manner in which the rioting developed indicated that preparations had been made beforehand.

This is not the first time these particular elements have instigated disorders in the Colony and they constitute an ever-present menace to the peace and tranquillity of Hongkong. The strongest measures are demanded for their suppression.

GOVERNMENT, quite properly, tolerates the existence of various political factions, and so long as they remain law-abiding they are entitled to celebrate special events and occasions. But if, as in this case, the Double Tenth anniversary is to produce lawless behaviour by certain elements, who enjoy the sanctity of the Colony but abuse it, then in the interests of the general public it may be necessary to ban observance of this particular event.

The authorities, it can be said, have handled the situation firmly and satisfactorily. The difficulties of suppressing rioting in the heavily populated urban areas of Kowloon are considerable, and the curfew imposed yesterday, while causing much discomfort and inconvenience to the Colony as a whole, was an action which had to be taken in light of the prevailing conditions.

At time of writing the situation was more encouraging and it is the fervent hope of the public that conditions throughout the Colony will return to normal during the next 24 hours.

GOVT. EXTENDS CURFEW

ZONES ANNOUNCED FOR FOOD BUYING TOMORROW'S RACES OFF Isolated Incidents

The Hongkong Government announced this morning that the curfew imposed on Kowloon last night would be continued indefinitely but would be lifted for two-hour periods in six zones to allow people to buy essential food supplies.

Troops lined the streets of the first zone as the curfew was lifted and crowds poured into the street to visit shops. Gurkhas took up positions along Nathan Road.

The 12 Field Regiment, R.A., has been posted at the junction of Castle Peak Road and Tai Po Road.

Army spotter planes circled overhead. Ferry services were suspended for a further indefinite period to incoming but international caravel passengers between Hongkong and the Peninsula.

Crowds lined outside the Star Ferry terminals at Hongkong and, when the curfew was lifted in zone 1 (the Peninsula south of Austin Road), at Tsimshatsui. Inspectors told them no ferries were running.

Some Incidents

Isolated incidents were reported by our reporters based at central points in Kowloon.

In Hung Hom, it was reported that Police threw three tear gas bombs when a crowd began to gather at To Kwa Wan market. The crowd dispersed.

Copies of Communist newspapers displayed in newsstands in the Hung Hom district were destroyed.

At about 10.50 a.m. a riot squad cleared away pedestrians from Nathan Road.

At 12.25 a.m. a large crowd gathered outside the Broadway Theatre. Police fired tear gas shells and the crowd dispersed.

Many cases of curfew breaking were reported from all parts of Kowloon. Police have arrested a number of people.

Police cars equipped with loudspeakers are patrolling the streets of areas still under the curfew warning them to stay indoors or face arrest.

A Chinese woman in an advanced state of pregnancy arrived at Police Headquarters this morning and was rushed to hospital by the Police.

Boundary Street, Shamshui po, is now entirely manned by troops, a China Mail observer reported at 11 a.m. today. He said barbed wire entanglements had been erected and machine guns placed at strategic points.

Full casualty figures are still unknown.

The Kowloon curfew split the Colony in two last night, but a small flow of traffic resumed this morning. Many business houses and shops in Hongkong were understaffed.

The Hongkong Stock Exchange was closed and it was announced that all R.H.K.D.F. training for this evening, tomorrow and Sunday had been called off.

The Hongkong Jockey Club announced that Saturday's race meeting had been postponed. A further announcement would be made about Monday's meeting on Monday. All tomorrow's soccer matches have been cancelled.

The Director of Education announced that all schools would be closed tomorrow. The Telephone Company urged users to make only essential calls because of severe overloading of the lines.

Police today took measures to prevent crowds visiting the Peak on Hongkong Island for the Chung Yeung festival. The Peak tram service did not operate and pilgrims who set off to walk were stopped in Garden Road above the Y.W.C.A. and turned back. They went to the Botanic Garden instead.

Police also turned back non-resident cars visiting The Peak area.

Far fewer Nationalist flags were flying from houses tops on the island today. A reporter who walked along Queen's Road and scanned the central district from the top of a building reported that many flags had been taken down.

At 10.30 this morning the Hon. E. B. David, the Officer Administering the Government, visited Brigadier L. N. Cholmeley, Commander Hongkong and Kowloon Garrison, at Police Headquarters in Kowloon.

They later visited the area where disturbances took place.

A little later Lieut-General W.H. Stratton, Commander British Forces, and Mr K.A. Bidmead, Acting Commissioner of Police, visited Police Headquarters in Kowloon. They were escorted from Tsimshatsui by military and police convoy.

Shortly before their arrival nine suspects who are believed to be some of the ring leaders of yesterday's riots were brought into Headquarters.

RIOTERS STORM POZNAN PRISON

Citizens Go Underground

Bombed constantly by Communist Chinese artillery, continually threatened with invasion, some 44,000 inhabitants of Quemoy Nationalist Chinese-held island live and work calmly within sight of the enemy on the mainland. Picture shows a Nationalist Chinese soldier helping a father and child emerge from a dugout after a "cease fire." Whenever heavy artillery from either side goes into action, the islanders take shelter in dugouts built in streets or back gardens. —Express Photo.

Princess Margaret Goes Shopping

Dar Es Salaam, Tanganyika, Oct. 11. Princess Margaret went shopping today for Prince Charles and Princess Anne — but the Indian shopkeeper refused the money.

The Princess, looking for gifts for her nephew and niece—the children of her sister, Queen Elizabeth—walked into a small curio shop. Mrs Nergis Dastur, the owner, refused any payment for a small ebony warthog which the Princess wanted to buy.

When the Princess then admired a set of table mats, these too were presented to her.

Cheered

A crowd outside the shop cheered as she left with her gifts.

Princess Margaret earlier opened the one million pounds sterling new Dar Es Salaam general hospital, which has 1,000 beds. It has been called the Princess Margaret Hospital and training centre in her honour.

This was her last day before flying "up-country."

At the hospital, built on a site which a short time ago had been a coconut plantation, Princess Margaret was given a bouquet by a small girl who is

Warden's Story Of Bread, Wage Fights

Poznan, Oct. 11. A prison warden said today that crowds used wooden battering rams to storm Poznan gaol and release prisoners in riots which raged through this West Polish industrial town on June 28.

Japanese Not Climbing Himalayas

Kathmandu, Oct. 11. The Nepalese Foreign Office today denied a Tokyo report that Kyoto University had been permitted to bring out an expedition next year to climb Annapurna two in Central Nepal.

A Foreign Office spokesman said that unless all applicants for next year's expeditions—seven in total, two from Britain, one from Australia, two from the United States, one from Japan and one from France—intimate their willingness to abide by new mountaineering regulations their applications would not be considered.

Nepal has already forwarded copies of the new regulations to all governments through their embassies and legations in New Delhi.

SPONSORED

The new rules specify that all future expeditions wishing to climb the Nepalese Himalayas should be sponsored by a semi-official or official organisation of repute and that the expedition should submit a full report on its work to the Nepal Government before leaving.

The rules also state that there should be no copyrighting of news about expeditions' exploits and all copies of photographs taken by an expedition should be submitted to the Nepal Government before publication. —Reuter.

Secret Police Trial Of Farkas

Paris, Oct. 11. Colonel Vladimir Farkas and three other former high officials of the Hungarian political police, will be tried publicly soon for violation of "Socialist legality." The Budapest radio reported to-night.

Farkas, the son of former Defence Minister, Mihali Farkas, and his three alleged accomplices were arrested in Budapest on October 5. They were recently dismissed from their jobs. —France-Press.

More Witnesses

Before the court adjourned until tomorrow, both prosecution and defence asked permission to call more witnesses.

The prosecution said they wanted to question two doctors, two nurses and two ambulance men who would testify that they were unable to get through to tend wounded people during the fighting around the security building. Because of this a security man died, they said.

Defence lawyers also named a doctor and two nurses whom they wanted to ask about post-mortems on people killed.

Another court will pass judgment tomorrow on eight youths between 18 and 22, and a 35-year-old man accused of stealing arms and attacking the security headquarters.

This will be the second major verdict of the Poznan riot trials.

Too Lenient

The state prosecutor announced today he was appealing against sentences in the first case, decided last Monday, because he considered them "too lenient."

In this case, Jozse Polonyi and Jerry Stroka were imprisoned for four and a half years and Kazimierz Sunki for four years for murdering a security policeman. —Reuter.

Suez Group Behind Eden

FAURE EXPELLED

TORIES CLOSE RANKS ON VITAL ISSUE

By FRASER WIGHTON

Llandudno, Wales, Oct. 11.

The British Conservative (Government) Party today gave strength to the hand of its leader, Sir Anthony Eden, in pursuing a tough policy over the Suez Canal dispute.

Four thousand representatives at the opening of the party's annual conference here closed ranks enthusiastically behind the "Suez Group" of members of Parliament who demand no weakening over the dispute.

They roared approval when Capt. Charles Waterhouse, a leader of the group, declared:

"Tell the Prime minister that if

"We will lead we will follow."

Dulles Attacked

They applauded loudly when speakers attacked Mr. John Foster Dulles, United States Secretary of State, for alleged half-heartedness in his support of Britain and France.

Mr. Julian Amery, another leader of the "Suez Group," referred to "Mr. Dulles' Rock'n'Roll technique" and urged him by saying: "If the appeal to the Security Council fails, then our hands are free to use any and every measure that may be necessary to achieve our ends, including, if necessary, the use of force."

The tough mood of the conference was echoed by the Government Speaker, Mr. Anthony Nutting, Minister of State at the Foreign Office.

"We are determined to maintain that fundamental principle of the sanctity of international engagements without which there can be no stability, no security and no enduring peace," he said.

Will Not Flinch

"Unhappily, the United Nations were to find itself unable for one reason or another to do its duty in this respect, this would not absolve us from doing ours, and we should have to consider how this could best be done."

"Should that hard test come upon us—and there is surely no one who would wish that it should—I do not believe this country will flinch from it, any more than in the past."

The conference, with only one division, passed an amendment endorsing the Government's "resolute" policy throughout the crisis.

Before the conference opened, there had been fears that the critical "Suez Group" would clash with the Government over the resolution because it left out mention of International control of the Canal. But NYK said eight Japanese shipping companies which were members of the New York Freight Conference had submitted to the Japanese Ministry of Transportation a memorandum explaining the competition from the Mariner-type high speed freighters which the United States Line, an American shipping firm, had been employing on the service since August.

SUSPEND SUBSIDY

According to the NYK the memorandum specifically suggested that Japanese Government should ask the United States Government to suspend "operating differential subsidy" allegedly being granted to the Mariner-type freighters.

NYK said Japanese shipping firms concerned had lost an estimated 8,000 tons of cargo since August to the Mariner-type freighters which could cover the Japan to New York route in about 21 days compared with about 30 days for Japanese boats.—Reuter.

MEETS THE GIRL WHO SAYS ENGLISH IS THE LANGUAGE OF LOVE...

I WISH I AM A MAN, SAYS MISS MARTINE!

London.

MARTINE CAROL — who is the most shapely, the least masculine, the most dimpled import to reach these shores recently (including Liberace), looked at me and said:

"I wish I am a man."

She expected me to look shocked, I think, and I did. I said, "You don't?" "You mustn't."

"But I do. Always I wish I am a man. I tell you why."

"Tell me, please."

"Because the man has so much more freedom. I can do what he likes—almost."

"I mean he can have many lady friends and he is not called a bad man."

"But if we do it we lose the reputation.
We are called . . . we are called . . . what is it in English?" (Like many bilingual and fascinating Frenchwomen her English sometimes fails her—conveniently.)

I gave her a selection of appropriate words, which incidentally describe many of the characters she has played in French films.

She said: "Ah, English, it is a beautiful language."

The eyes twinkle

I was beginning to expect the unexpected from her but hardly this.

It is the language of love. It is better than French for love."

"Nonsense."

"It is true. I tell you, I know."

I decided not to argue with a recognised authority, though I detected a twinkle in her eyes which are like large, green, shiny grapes (from the best vineyards.)

She returned briefly to her desire for a sex change.

"Oh, if I were a man I would . . . I would . . .

One of those eloquent Gallic gestures completed the sentence.

I assured her I was very happy about the fact that she was not a man.

I felt sure I was speaking on behalf of at least 50,000,000 Frenchmen, Englishmen, Americans even Algerians, and men of all the 20 countries she visited on a recent world tour.

The eyes twinkle

"The Japanese are very polite and very passionate, they say."

I also remarked that although she was a woman, a target for columnists, she had succeeded in having a fairly varied life, including 10 engagements and two marriages.

The trio in the Mayfair club where we were dining played "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing" — not at Mela Carol's request — while she talked about her first marriage to a wealthy American stockbroker, Stephen Crane.

"The money I make" (Now about £40,000-a film).

"Do you like being directed by your husband in films?"

"Yes and no. Sometimes he is more tough with me than with another actress."

"And if I act bad one day in the studio I am still hearing about it when we go home."

"What does he think about the famous bath scenes of yours? And the nude scenes?"

"Sometimes he is . . . jealous. But he does not mind if he is directing."

"Didn't you say last time you were in London that there would be no more bath scenes?"

"Yes, I mean it."

"So there won't be any in this 'In You're going to make here'?"

"None."

"Only two. You see—everyone write to say you must not stop.
It is difficult. But also in the film I have a chance to make."

Invitation

The film is called "Action of The Tiger"; it is being produced by Kenneth Harper and directed by Terence Young.

Her husband is not associated with the film. Harper and Young.

As she floated on size three shots out of the club she gave me a parting invitation.

"Before we go work in your studios we go on location to Spain. You must come to visit me."

Where will you be staying?
"At a hotel called the Sexti.
It is true. You find me at the Sexti. Can you believe it?"

I said I'd try.

A cue

Even an American would have taken the cue for gallantry. I said that 29 would be just as suitable.

"No, no. Thirty-two is right.
My husband agrees."

She daintily forked a piece of pepper steak into her beautiful mouth, ruminated for a moment and talked about the influence of her husband, who is also her film director.

"Before I met him I do not know what I want, I am mixed up."

"You know, once when I am very sad I walk into the Sexti." (She was rescued before she got very wet.)

"You see I am a Basque. And the Basque people are temperamental. Up or down."

"But Christian help me to have better balance."

"And he teach me many things. About looking after the money for example."

"When I was writing the cheque I used to always forget to fill the other bit . . . the . . .

"Counterfoil."

"Counterfoil. It is a beautiful language. He make me fill the counterfoil so I know how much I have spent from solidarity they're bringing

THE QUEEN HAS INSPIRED A RELAXING OF FORMALITY

By W. K. BLISS

that, and Elizabeth II has had to live her public life before half the nation and sometimes before the world as well.

Publicity also affects the upbringing of her children. She desires them to be brought up neither in cotton wool nor in film star atmosphere.

It is her own idea that Prince Charles is taken out occasionally for bus rides in London or trips on the Tube. He enjoys those the more because he is incognito — or nearly always so. In due course, Princess Anne will also sample these simple delights.

The Duke of Edinburgh is firmly with the Queen in these ideas. Naturally he has much more freedom in private life than she has.

He can attend informal events (particularly youth club functions which are seldom reported); he can mix more freely, talk more openly, and is thus in an excellent position to apprise the Queen of the ways of her world which she appears to understand so thoroughly.

Now, the cinema, the press camera and TV have altered all that.

TIME was, not so long ago, when the monarch was seen only by the immediate assembly, most of whom had a more or less distant view.

It gives her a tremendous sense of confidence she could not otherwise have attained in so short a time. She fully realizes that the Queen is always in the merciless glare of a publicly known tour.

Police officials are unanimous that the greatest single factor in her development as Head of the State was the Commonwealth tour that ended triumphantly two years ago.

She came to the Throne a wife and mother, but yet a girl to most of her subjects because of her spirited youthfulness. Now, after four years, they have seen her acquire poise and certitainty, a maturity that has not dulled her youthful gaiety.

Two other points are noted. She is now so photogenic—so dignified and graceful in pageantry, so charming and unaffected on less formal occasions. And she has developed her sense of clothes.

She is responsive to compliments about her clothes (what young woman would not be?) and is well aware that her people like to see her well-dressed.

In her first Christmas broadcast as Queen she promised to dedicate herself to service, and these four years have seen a full implementation of that promise. She has shown a dedication to duty as strong as her father's and her grandfather's.

More Freedom

AT the same time there has been more freedom for herself and for others.
It would be going too far to say she has altered the pattern of Court life, but she has inspired gradual changes and a relaxing of formality without any abrupt break with tradition, and she has made some adjustments to have more time with her children.

The proposal is for a lottery (or perhaps a football poll), sponsored by the City Council and yielding profits that would be used to reduce the local rate.

This stands now at a high figure, and the more sanguine enthusiasts believe that a lottery scheme would produce enough money — perhaps as much as £50,000 a year — to putting the rate down considerably.

Some say the Council has no chance of consulting Mr Macmillan, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who has proposed what many people consider to be almost a National tax. Others say the Council is a man-made evil that can and ought to be eradicated.

Or is Britain beginning clumsily and diffidently to straighten out its thinking on the whole difficult question of gambling?

Is it a man-made evil that can and ought to be eradicated?

These are old arguments, but that is no reason why a people should despair of the question ever being settled. Recent events in the United Kingdom should stimulate Britons in their efforts to be honest with themselves.

For my part—and I am one of the minority who find gambling a bore—I should much prefer the "courtship" of "Lady Luck" to be directed towards reducing the rates and taxes I have to pay or to putting up new hospitals and the like, instead of feathering the squillous nest of the betting industry.

FROM WELFARE STATE TO "WINDFALL" STATE?

By A Special Correspondent

NO place on earth could be less like Las Vegas, mecca of gambling in the USA, than the pleasant English township of Hereford. Yet the honest citizens of that West of England town are arguing the merits of a municipal gambling organisation.

BORN today. You are dramatic and, for you, all the world includes your own small piece of it is a stage. You have a high imagination and can use it to advantage. You are a good conversationalist, drawing that fine line between your own dream-world and reality. Yet, as you get older, you will become more practical and your dreams to good use.

You live on excitement and change and your routine is to be led down to a dull routine. Select a type of work which will give you a chance to use your dramatic imagination. There are strong dramatic strains in your nature, and you believe that your real destiny depends upon a high level of activity. When you have little or no control. Yet, on the other hand, you believe that you should exert yourself to the fullest to realize your potentialities. Your emotions are deep and your mind when it comes to love and romance

THE young and enterprising who long to go to Mars missed their chance the other day.

With pardonable pride the astronomers announced that the planet was only 35,000,000 miles from the earth. But by now it is once more out of reach, after that hairbreadth escape, and the fidgety must wait until 1971 for another chance as good as the one they missed. But there are consolations, such as the American agency which accepts bookings for future journeys to the moon, with the slogan: "Don't You Want To Go Places?"

Opening Lead Hinges Fate

By OSWALD JACOBY

WHEN today's hand was played in a recent team match, the bidding was the same at both tables. At one table West opened the Jack of diamonds. East unblocked with the queen of diamonds, holding the trick. East held the next trick with the King of diamonds, but drove out the ace on the third round of the suit.

South led the 10 of clubs and had a moment's hope when this finesse held the trick. He continued with another club but West discarded the Jack of hearts to signal his ace. East had refused the first club trick in the hope that West would be able to signal which ace he held.

South could have saved one trick, but he could not make the contract. He gave East a club trick, and the heart return permitted the defenders to take the ace of hearts and the rest of the diamonds. The contract was thus set two tricks for a loss of 200 points.

At the other table of the team match, West opened the Jack of hearts instead of the Jack of diamonds. South allowed this lead to ride around to his king

Scobie Breasley Whispers A Tip—Lightkeeper For Cesarewitch Stakes

By GEORGE WHITING

Jockeys are notoriously the worst tipsters in the world—outside of sports columnists—but when the currently most successful performer of them all permits a whisper to escape two normally tightly-zipped lips, then it is surely time to cast aside dull care, mortgage the old home, and let who will call you a mug.

But, first, an introduction to the quiet, we man from Wagga Wagga—Arthur (Scobie) Breasley, Australia's gift to horseracing history; the jockey whose partnership with trainer Sir Gordon Richards has recently been paying off with remarkable regularity for us workaday punters.

"We get on well together, cover," Mr Breasley. "He had hardly been in the place five minutes before he had scored a maximum in his first two rides—on Promotion and Decorum at Liverpool.

For the record, Breasley's hobby-horse style of strongman riding—hug the fence, judge the pace, and let lesser men get excited—has produced his best-ever British season of 113 winners to date. When I met him he had "obliged" with 20 winners on ten racing days with never a blank since September 14.

Inidentally, the British did not have to wait long to "oblige" a solid job in white stone, purchased for a reputed £10,000 last year from an over-published character, to whom Mr Breasley, is not over-anxious to award any further headlines.

Inside, good taste and comfort greet you. With the head of the house earning at a rate that makes a Prime Minister look a pauper, Mr and Mrs (May) Breasley and their 16-year-old daughter, Loretta, have firmly forsaken all forms of ostentation.

Good practical Australians, they get along by on mushy carpets, sleep-inducing chairs, porcelain miniatures, a dream kitchen, two TV sets, and only one grand piano.

Mr Breasley dresses for dinner—in subdued grey tweeds, green leather slippers, white sports shirt, and no tie. Aged 42, brownish hair retreating at the gesso; teetotaller—non-smoker; blessed with a racing weight of about eight stone that pounds normal diet and compels no Turkish bath routine; looks something like fellow countryman from Melbourne Lindsay Hassett, except that the nose has a touch of Napoleon about it.

We talked racing. Correction I talked racing. Mr Breasley wanted to talk boxing. However, I think I can claim a draw.

I learned that he fell off a pony at Wagga Wagga at the age of five; that he rode his first winner when he was 14; that he had won every big race but one in Australia, including the Caulfield Cup five times, but that he had now given up all hope of triumph in the more celebrated Melbourne Cup.

LITTLE MIX-UP!

Accidents? Broken bones? Well, yes, there had been that little mix-up in the Fochdale Handicap last June with five jockeys lying in a heap on the Newbury turf. Just a little concussion for Mr Breasley.

The previous time he was not so lucky. Two years ago at Alexandra Park, Breasley took a loss to the rails that fractured his skull, put him in hospital for three months, and left him with paralysed eyes and the gait of a drunken derelict.

Only cool nursing by his wife, a man's share of guts, and some rough but extremely effective healing across Sunningdale golf course by his pal, Norman van Nida, put Scobie Breasley back in focus.

My Australian host sighed again his everlasting thankfulness, at which demonstration of warmth and good feeling I deemed it opportune to get down to the real business of the meeting.

"Mr Breasley," I said, "A man named Count Charles Scerri-Aspang has a four-year-old colt named Lightkeeper running in the Cesarewitch at Newmarket on October 17, and this horse, I am told, is to be ridden by you, sir. Is that true?" "You want a tip?" said Mr Breasley.

Mayer consulted by letter and cable with I.O.C. President Avery Brundage of the U.S. and other IOC members, and answered that it was not contemplated at the moment, but the Nationalist complaint was grave enough to be discussed in the IOC plenary meeting in Melbourne. It has already been put on the agenda.

—United Press.

FAIR CHANCE'

"The Cesarewitch," he whispered, "is a hell of a race. But you could say that Lightkeeper has a chance. Yes, a pretty fair chance."

Twenty-two whole words of prophecy at one go. From Mr Breasley, that is practically an oration.

And if Lightkeeper has the slightest sense of responsibility, gratitude, or love of the human race, it will not fail to put its best hoof forward when the great man from Wagga Wagga goes a-riding on October 17.

Hungary Rated Number Three In Track Events After America And Russia

By DEREK JOHN

The two-day athletics match in Budapest the other week-end has boosted Britain's Olympic stock. Hungary are rated as No 3 as a world power on the track after America and Russia.

Last year Hungary beat Britain's men by 28 points. This time the margin was down to four. And the United Kingdom were without middle distance stars Gordon Pirie and Ken Wood.

Welsh steeplechaser John Diley, the only Briton apart from Trinidad's McDonald Bailey (who ran for Britain) to win a medal on track or field at Helsinki, confirmed that he is again the U.S.'s best bet.

Last season mountaineer Diley set himself a five-men-to-beat programme. He listed the top steeplechasers in Europe and beat them all.

This season he has found three new rivals. One of them, Hungary's László Jeszenszky, he beat in Budapest. The other two are new world record holder Semjon Rzchishchin, the 23-year-old Russian soldier, and Norway's Ernst Larsen.

The victory by 70 points to 43 by Britain's women athletes over the Hungarians confirms that they are second only to the Russians.

POOR FORM

Poor gymnasium form has ended the ambitious boxing career of Carl "Bobo" Olson, former middleweight champion of the world. At 28, he has decided to retire.

Olson won his title from Britain's Randolph Turpin in New York three years ago, and since then has met with some success tackling cruiserweights while still middleweight champion. All went well until he started title chasing in the higher division and was knocked out by champion Archie Moore.

Olson certainly tried his best. He ran in deep sand to strengthen his calf muscles and toughened his chin by lifting a 300lb block of cement with his lower jaw.

New subject at Melbourne schools: How to collect autographs.

When the pick of the world's athletes assemble in Melbourne for the Olympic Games the authorities reckon that autographs will be much in demand.

So top sportsmen are visiting the schools to tell the children how to go about collecting them. Some of the tips they will pass on: Don't push and give the athlete a sharp pencil and something firm to write on.

ONLY THE BEST

Only the best is good enough for the Russians. The Soviet Union has decided to brush up her table tennis. So Victor Barna, the greatest player in the history of the game, has been invited to Moscow next summer for three months as a coach.

Providing there are no nitches, the trip is on. Barna is looking forward to going.

If Ceylon wins the High Jump at the Olympic Games a thought for the man who makes the announcement. For the name of the Ceylon representative is Nuzulam Ethir-Abbercrombie.

The Americans may bank on youth in a bid to end Australia's monopoly in the Davis Cup. Comparative unknowns Sam Glammalva and Mike Green are tipped as the combination to face the all-powerful Lew Hoad-Ken Rosewall partnership in the Challenge Round next month.

The matter was enthusiastically discussed after the Americans, using Green and Glammalva as substitutes, completed a 4-1 victory over Italy in the Inter-zone final at Forest Hills.

HIS FIRST TASK

Gordon Pirie arrived in Melbourne this week to begin training for the Olympic Games. His first task, however, is to help World Middle Champion John Landy back to fitness.

Landy has ankle trouble. Pirie had it too, now his has the curse. "It will take me about ten days to fix," he said on arriving at Melbourne.

Possible sequel: If Landy carries out his plan to switch to the 5,000 Metres event in the Olympics he may be world record-holder Pirie's chief rival.

Australia All Out For 80 Against Pakistan Shortly After Tea

Karachi, Oct. 11.

Pakistan, youngest of the cricket nations, shut out Australia for 80 runs on the opening day of the first ever Test between the two countries today. At the close, Pakistan had replied with 15 for two.

The Australians, who are playing one Test in Pakistan and three in India on the way home from their recent visit to Britain, were all out shortly after tea.

Their meagre total was the lowest of the tour, being four runs less than their first innings score in the Fourth Test against England at Macclesfield.

Pakistan pace bowler 29-year-old Fazal Mahmood performed with sustained accuracy on a matting pitch. He took the first

DAVIS CUP

American Tennis Team To Meet India

New York, Oct. 11.

The American tennis team to meet India in the Inter-zone finals of the Davis Cup was officially selected tonight to include Vic Seixas, Herb Flamm, Sam Glammalva and Mike Green.

There were no surprises in the American selection Committee's announcement. It was already known that with Hamilton Richardson, who played in previous American Davis Cup matches, out of the team, Seixas and Flamm would be the backbone of the formation.

Richardson is prevented from playing by his studies at Oxford University.

Billy Tropert was confirmed as non-playing captain.

The India-United States matches will be played in Australia in early December and the winner will meet Australia in the challenge round at the end of that month.—Finnish Press.

BRITISH BOXING GOES STEP NEARER GRAVEYARD

Let Promoters Nominate The Referee, Says Jack Solomons

By GEORGE WHITING

There will be no more fights for heavyweight Dick Richardson—or anybody else—under the promotion of Jack Solomons until he, Solomons, is permitted some say in the appointment of referees. Such is today's more-in-sorrow-than-anger sequel to the howling shambles at Harringay, where referee Frank Wilson, of Glasgow, disqualified America's Ezzard Charles for "persistent holding" after 2 min. 29 sec. of the second round against white-hope Richardson.

"This was the last straw. I'm licked. I can't take any more," Solomons told me. "I invest my money. I try to give the public a show, and what do I get? I get people howling at me at the ringside and accusing me of bringing in my own referee to make sure Richardson wins."

"The money I do not mind," I said, "but when it happens 4 ft. from my health I care about."

WHY NOT BOTH?

I hold no brief for fighting men who hug and hew when they should be punching, but, if referee Wilson were seeking the strictest possible interpretation of our British rules, should he not have disqualified both Charles and Richardson?

How much holding makes for "holding"? The degree of infelicitousness is not easy to define, but if two men are pinned in each other's arms, then surely they should both be disqualified—or both be allowed to continue?

The fight? It never got started.

Backstage, I listened to protests from all parties. Something like this:

Charles: "Gee, I'm at my wits' end. I always fight clean. I was never disqualified in all my career. That boy Richardson is a rough boy and he sure did use his head, but he can't know much."

Stayed Close:

"Holding is holding, but what I was doing out there was maybe messing him around a little, like you have to do when you're taught to come at you with his head down."

Richardson: "Charles just hauled and stalled. He didn't even want to fight. He held me tight and every time I tried to pull away he would crack me with a left hook so I stayed in close."

And so on and so on. Two men go into a mid-ring huddle. A referee goes in honest, but (in my view) over-hasty decision. Everyone screams. And British boxing, once a healthy sport, gets pushed ever nearer the graveyard.

P.S. — Congratulations to featherweight Bobby Neil for his five rounds win over Ray Flanagan. But how distressing to see the once swift Flanagan going around like an aged jack.

REFEREE FRANK WILSON

MEET THE FANS

I Support Wolves—Thanks To A Pin

By TERRY GREENWOOD

(In An Interview With Eric Nicholls)

Whenever I hear people joking about old ladies who do the pools with the aid of knitting needles, I have to laugh. I support Wolverhampton Wanderers. And I picked them out with a pin.

I've never been to Molineux. I only watch Wolves when they come to London. But I don't think I made a bad choice.

Richardson: "Charles just hauled and stalled. He didn't even want to fight. He held me tight and every time I tried to pull away he would crack me with a left hook so I stayed in close."

And so on and so on. Two men go into a mid-ring huddle. A referee goes in honest, but (in my view) over-hasty

Let me explain. I was eight years old at the time. A friend and I were reading the football results one Saturday evening, when my friend suggested we should each blindfold ourselves and choose a team with a pin.

Strangely enough I have stuck to them ever since. Strange, because it was all part of a kid's joke, and strange because I was born a twopenny bus ride from Arsenal Stadium and until then had known no other team than the 'Gunners.'

ROARS AND SIGHS

None of my family were interested in soccer. But almost as soon as I could walk, I had a ball in my feet. I used to hear the roar and the sighs that drifted in over the rooftops from Highbury. I soon realised the meaning behind them.

I was a football fan. It was as simple as that.

I began by my rushing for the evening papers to see how the football was on each Saturday, and then religiously reading every report of their match on Sundays.

Now, although I have never watched them at home, I know all I need to know about the Wolves.

I know that they play fast attacking football. I know that they have one of the finest managers in the country in Stan Cullis and one of the greatest ever England skipers in Billy Wright. And I know that at the time they had seven internationals in their team.

But there have never been any favourites at Wolverhampton for me. I support the team, as a team.

I have watched them at every London First Division ground. I went to Wembley when they beat Leicester City in the 1949 Cup Final, and was at Wembley again to watch Williams, Wright, Slater and Wilshaw play in the same England team.

They are very fit too and that goes a long way with me.

Our hopes of success at the Olympics are so slim that this defeat by Uganda should not worry our boys unduly.

Last season they were struggling to avoid relegation. Now with practically the same team they are chasing all-conquering Manchester United for the League Championship.

I've Always Liked The Harmer Style

Says STANLEY MATTHEWS

Pure football — that is the keynote of the Spurs' success this season. They have realised that the ball-player is the only man who can give us football in its old glory — and in little Tommy Harmer they have the perfect example.

I always liked the way Tommy played and sympathised with him when the crowds were against him.

To his credit, he continued to play his natural game. Maybe his size prevented any other style but he just went on persisting.

Now he is getting his reward and Spurs are getting their dividend too. Harmer may get international recognition before long if he goes on serving up such grand stuff.

Terry Medwin has made a difference to the Spurs attack, while Danny Blanchflower is still one of the greatest wing halves in the country.

Don has that knock of being able to inspire his forwards by continually pushing the ball through.

The Spurs all-round defence is sound too. But what a fascinating example the Spurs' success provides of the uncertainty of football!

Last season they were struggling to avoid relegation. Now with practically the same team they are chasing all-conquering Manchester United for the League Championship.

AROUND HOLLYWOOD

NOT FROM SWEDEN, BUT SHE ALSO LIKES TO BE ALONE

By RON BURTON

Actress Virginia Leith doesn't think you have to come from Sweden to want to be alone. She comes from Cleveland and wants to be alone periodically.

"Being from Cleveland has nothing to do with it," she said. "I want to be alone because I want to think completely independently one day a month to be by myself as much as possible—just to sit and think."

Miss Leith, a little blonde, actually instituted her day-a-month-for-thought programme while she was aiming toward acting. She thinks it's worked so far and sees no reason to dump a successful idea.

"I love solitude occasionally," she said. "In fact, I believe that it is beneficial for an actress to remain completely alone one day a month. I like the opportunity of meditating.

STILL DOES IT

"I'm not alone in this general idea, either. Many persons are aware of the rapid pace of modern life and feel that many of us rarely stop long enough to think. I know from my own experience that after a day of solitude I return to work refreshed—I can cope much better with my problems."

When Miss Leith was just another Hollywood model and only planning a Hollywood career, she began her thought-solitude programme. She'd go down the coast to Balboa and, wearing blue jeans and a western shirt, stroll along the beach and think about her future.

Miss Leith, now at work at Warners in "Toward the Unknown," said the thought periods do not have any tendency to turn her into a hermit. She finds that after her day off by herself—she has no desire to go through it again for another month.

Libyans Worried About

Succession
KING IDRIS
HAS NO HEIR

Tripoli, Libya, Oct. 11.

Libyans are worried lest the unity between the monarchy and the federal Government which has set Libya on the road to constitutional, democratic government, be broken by dissension over the succession to the throne if King Idris should die.

Even the 80-year-old King, who is reported to be in failing health, has no heir. He has no son by either of his two wives, Fatima and Aleya, and his mother, Emi Mohamed Rida Mahdi Senussi, who was his heir, died last year.

King Idris has already appointed in a Regency Council to take office when he dies. The names of its members, contained in sealed letters deposited by the King with Parliament and Government, are secret. But it is thought that the present Prime Minister and Foreign Minister, Mustapha Ben Baten, is likely to be one of them.

Senussi Sect

Claims by various members of the Senussi sect, of which King Idris is said to be the leader, to be seriously entertained, observers here say, because they would almost certainly result in internal dissension. The Senussi, staunch opponents of Mussolini's colonial régime here, are part of the Senussi Sect of Islam, whose chief centre has always been Cyrenaica, one of Libya's provinces.

Because of the Senussi, under Idris' leadership, the Italians always found Cyrenaica much more difficult to colonise than the other two provinces, Tripolitania and the Fezzan. Idris was, indeed, finally forced to go into exile in Egypt, where he remained until, during World War II, he founded an Arab Force which fought with the British Eighth Army throughout the desert campaign.

Idris assumed natural leadership of the Libyan people while the country's three provinces were under provisional Allied administration after the war. The British being in Tripolitania and Cyrenaica and the French in the Fezzan.

When Libya was proclaimed an independent state by the United Nations on Christmas Eve, 1951, Idris was proclaimed ruler of the United Kingdom.

The Libyan nation, today has a Federal Government and two capitals, Tripoli and Benghazi. King Idris and the Government move periodically from one to the other.

Proud

Libyans, in spite of tribal and provincial rivalries, are proud of their sovereignty because of their uncompromising fight throughout the years of Italian colonialism. When he returned recently after a state visit to Turkey and the Lebanon, milling throngs greeted him both at Tobruk, where the royal yacht first called, and later in Tripoli.

The King has been careful not to offend provincial jealousies and the Governors of each of the three provinces have a large amount of autonomy.

Membership of the Senate is carefully designed to foster this feeling of equality among the

BOAC Major
Airline
Shareholder

Kuala Lumpur, Oct. 11. The British Overseas Airways Corporation is to be a major shareholder in a new Malayan airways company to be formed next year, the Minister for Transport, Mr Ong Yoke Lin, said today. He said the company would be a public company.

At present Malayan Airways Ltd. is a private company. The Straits Steamship Company Ltd. holds 1,800,000 Malayan dollars of the issued capital of 2,000,000 Malayan dollars.

Mr Ong said a Malayan Government representative would sit on the board of directors of the new company, which would be formed early next year.

Mr Ong said the advantages of having BOAC "as a major participant" were that it had facilities for training and therefore could assist Malaya.

NO NEW STATUS FOR ALGERIA
AT PRESENT

Paris, Oct. 11. M. Robert Lacoste, French Resident Minister in Algeria, told a Socialist Party brains-trust meeting today that offering Algeria a new status now would merely be giving in to the rebels there.

Pave Way

Informed sources said M. Lacoste insisted that the French would not have a free hand in Algeria as long as the Suez Canal crisis continued.

Fellow party members argued on the contrary that with the United Nations General Assembly about to meet France must either come up with a detailed plan for Algeria or risk facing another UN attempt to debate Algeria.

U.S. OWNS LARGEST AMOUNT OF
GOLD IN WORLD

Washington, Oct. 11.

A warning that although the United States holds the largest amount of gold of anyone in the world, it actually owns some four billion dollars' worth too little to back its currency and bank deposits, is given by Walter Trohan, chief of the Washington Bureau of the Chicago Tribune.

In a recent article issued by the Chicago Tribune Press Service, Mr. Trohan wrote: "It is easier for a camel to pass through a needle's eye than for a visitor to get to see this gold. If one could get in, it would take two or three years to make an accurate count of the gold. There is enough gold there to build a house of ten rooms, each measuring 10 feet by 20 feet and having 10 feet high ceilings."

EUROPEAN OWNED

"Actually, most of the gold is European owned. Others nations hold claims against the bulk of our gold. Foreigners and foreign governments are not prohibited from asking for, receiving, and owning our gold instead of our currency."

"Americans alone cannot own American gold. This is one of the biggest news stories of our day. We are not conscious of the story because it has been developing in front of our eyes without any dramatic climax, even though we know that creeping inflation has been developing for many years."

"The greater part of the gold stronghold is hidden from view. What one sees from the outside is the smaller part of the structure. Far beneath the surface, guarded by many detection devices as well as by men, is the massive gold vault, 64 feet long, 40 feet wide, and two stories high."

"At this moment, the vault contains 12 billion, 843 million dollars in gold. The total American gold holdings are 21 billion, 829 1/2 million dollars. Some 9 1/2 billion dollars are scattered at various banks and mints. In addition, the United States Government has billions of dollars of silver, much of it stored in vaults at West Point, But our concern is with the ownership of the gold, the 21 billion, 800 odd million dollars worth in the United States. Foreigners and foreign nations hold claims against the gold totalling 13 billion dollars. That leaves about 8 billion dollars available for American needs as a gold reserve."

To back its currency and bank deposits, the United States would have to have a gold reserve of 12 billion dollars. The total foreign assets in the United States are between 24 and 26 billion dollars. This does not include any real estate that foreign people may own here."

ABOUT HALF

"Not all of this could be redeemed in gold. Only about half of it could be demanded in gold payment. There is some 8 to 10 billion dollars in American currency owned abroad. Foreigners and foreign governments have credit balances in American banks of about 12 billion dollars and they own about 4 billion dollars in American securities."

"Foreigners or foreign governments can ask for and receive payment in gold for at least 13 billion 800 million dollars of their total investments. American citizens are not legally able to make the same demand."

"On March 9, 1933, President Roosevelt ordered the seizure of all gold and ordered citizens to surrender their gold coins, bullion, and notes to the treasury. The government declared it no longer had to redeem its debts in gold. It was made a penitentiary offence to own gold coins, except in coin collections. It still is today."

"President Roosevelt arbitrarily devalued the American dollar to 50 cents. It has dropped steadily in purchasing power so that today the dollar is regarded as having half of its 50 cents purchasing power."

PROTEST

"The treasury has exercised absolute and arbitrary power over the production, disposition, and hoarding of American gold for more than 23 years. Some argue that this control is a direct violation of personal ownership of private property. Those who defend the action fall into two camps."

"Some approve restoration of the gold standard, but protest it cannot be done now. Others contend that a return to the gold standard can only serve gold mining interests and inflationists."—China Mail Special

GERMAN
STEEL
FOR JAPAN

Dusseldorf, Oct. 11.

West Germany is to export steel to Japan in view of the growing demand for steel which cannot be met by Japanese home production. The Dusseldorf newspaper Handelsblatt stated tonight.

The Schlesier steel group has concluded an agreement for the delivery of 20,000 tons of laminated steel in sheet metal, steel strips and constructional steel-work. The steel will be delivered at world market prices. It is due to reach Japan before the end of 1956.

This is the first time that West Germany has supplied steel to Japan.

Shares Irregular
At The Close

WHEELOCK'S ACTIVE

By A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

After one of the busiest weeks this year, business contracted sharply on the Hongkong Stock Exchange yesterday leaving prices irregular but the undertone fairly steady.

Possibly the rioting in Kowloon was an inhibiting factor; or perhaps it was just that all who wanted to get rid of Wheelock's on the strength of last week's dividend and new issue announcement get rid of them.

Altogether 250,000 shares changed hands this week—accounting for about a third of the total $7,745 million turnover.

According to one broker, the week's heavy selling was largely by Chinese banks. He said the new issue proposal turned many Chinese investors away from these shares. He said he thought if the company had declared a 75-cent dividend and bonus and issued only bonus shares, the price today would be more than $10.

Turnover Up To $1m

As it is, they closed at $9.05 after dropping to below the $9 mark, down 15 cents on the week.

The market tally this week was eleven steady, ten higher and eight lower.

Turnover must be one of the highest this year. It was almost exactly double last week's $3,871 million.

On Friday turnover was $3.36 million largely due to dealings in Wheelock's.

Best gainers this week were Cements, Docks and Wharves, Cements, put in $1 to $39.51 below their all-time high. Granted this company's earnings are reported to be on the increase and its exports are going up, but I cannot understand the interest in this share at its present price. I think liquidation must come soon.

Wharves Up

And the two other shares to do well, Wharves at $90 are $3 short of this year's peak. They have gained $1.50 and I imagine they are proving a counter-attraction to investors who are liquidating heavily in other directions.

Docks are largely up on reports of better business. Shareholders also have not forgotten that the company paid last year's $5.50 dividend and bonus out of profits and that it still has the proceeds of last year's land sale up its sleeve. The share rose $2.50 to $45.45 which, according to my records, is an all-time high. Again, I would say some liquidation is imminent.

Utilities closed steady and higher on the week, but are below their best levels. Trans were steady at $22.70, China Lights 20 cents higher at $24.80. Electrics were 50 cents higher at $32 about $1 below their highest ex-all price earlier this year. Telephones were 20 cents better at $25.

Looking at some of the heavy stocks, Hongkong and Shanghai Banks have, after several weeks of sluggishness, moved up $10 to $1,640. Unicorns have lost another $5, which at that price is a fractional loss, and settled down at $1,000. Both Terry and Lantau, the Australian Prime Minister, had prepared the way for these take-over mergers.

The negotiations began seriously about two weeks ago with the arrival here of Mr. Roland Wilson and a team of Commonwealth bank and Treasury officials. Dr. Wilson and his equally Mr. Robert Menzies, the Australian Prime Minister, had prepared the way for these take-over mergers.

Amalgamated Rubber have been more active this week with about 80,000 shares changing hands and climbing to $1.525 largely on hopes of an increased dividend. They paid 16 cents final last year and investors are talking hopefully of another five cents.

Although London and New York have been influenced by the proceedings at the United Nations Security Council, Hongkong has not been unduly affected by the debate, and the rumour of a "switch" in the British attitude in its direct negotiations with Egypt had little effect on the market.

Restraint, however, induced by the dispute, is likely to continue until a solution of some kind is found. This now seems

Nanyangs Lower

Nanyangs have had a more active week and close lower than their best but steady on last Thursday's buying rates of $7.50. As far as I can gather there is nothing behind the sudden increase in business other than one or two big holders liquidating.

WORLD RUBBER MARKETS

New York, Oct. 11. The N. Y. Reg. rubber futures market closed 30 points higher with sales of six contracts. December closed 32.85-90 traded.

The Reg. contract closed 15.12-30 points higher with sales of 79 contracts.

Standard contract closed 15 to 30 points higher with no sales reported.

Although quiet, the terminal market had a steady underlying tone. Encouragement was drawn from foreign cables and the continued reluctance of eastern shippers to reduce offer prices.

A rising trend in automobile production and recent "bubbling" inquiries from factory buyers suggested an underlying demand, brokers thought.

One source thought potential Akron buyers were holding off waiting for outcome of the national election.

Intra-dealer switching in Reg. Sept.-May and January-November contracts accounted for some activity. Also Reg. March contracts were exchanged for physical rubber. Spot No. 1 Reg. was quoted nominally 32 1/2 cents a pound.
